Dear Brother:

I have often wept at the great injustice done to truth in the name of "having the truth." Thank you so much for publishing John Willis' article in January 27 Christian Chronicle on the nature of truth and the Christian approach to it.

Could the absence of the very attitudes expressed in this article be the reason why we scratch and claw about who possesses the truth without getting on to the task of actually pursuing truth.

One thing is certain, the day we begin to understand the nature of truth and the Christian's commitment to it is the day we are "freed" (John 8:32). That day will bring the end of all political posturing for brotherhood limelight in my life and in the life of every other person who dares to speak God's truth.

Fraternally yours,

John Allen Chalk
